

Michael Pawlyn

Architect & Sustainable Design Expert

Michael Pawlyn was part of the core team of architects who worked on the design of The Eden Project. In 2006 Michael was appointed to represent Grimshaw as a Founder Member of the UK Green Building Council and in 2007 was elected as a committee member of 'The Edge', a think-tank dedicated to addressing important political, social and professional issues.

"Michael is one of the most passionate advocates of sustainable architecture"
Sir Michael Grimshaw

In detail

In 1999 he was one of five winners in 'A Car-free London'. In September 2003 he joined an intensive course in nature-inspired design at Schumacher College. He has lectured widely on the subject of sustainable design in the UK and abroad and has delivered a talk at the Royal Society of Arts. He has also delivered a talk at Google's annual 'Zeitgeist' conference and at the Royal Geographical Society's annual conference 'Sustainability and Quality of Life'.
